Utilization of ETVO schedule

The ETVO Monthly Schedule has been designed to provide Ontario schools with a daily listing of all ETVO programs. Last-minute changes in programming and special features can be brought to the attention of teachers. It is important, then, to check the schedules in the Teachers' Guides against this up-to-date schedule.

The ETVO Monthly Schedule is organized in the following way:

1. Programs are listed by school divisions (e.g., Primary, Junior, etc.)
2. The series title, Teachers' Guide number, program number and individual program titles are given (e.g., BIOLOGY (S19a): 1. What is Biology?)
3. The duration of each program is listed (e.g., 20 min.)
4. TV stations are indicated by call letters, channel number and location (e.g., CKLW [9] Windsor). For detailed channel identification, see page 23.

For detailed description of individual series and programs, and for pre-viewing and post-viewing suggestions related to the programs, teachers will find the Teachers' Guides useful. These guides should be ordered through your school principal.

Cahier de l'horaire de la Télévo

Le cahier mensuel de la Télévo vous offre l'horaire précis de la programmation quotidienne des émissions diffusées et en français et en anglais par la Télévo.

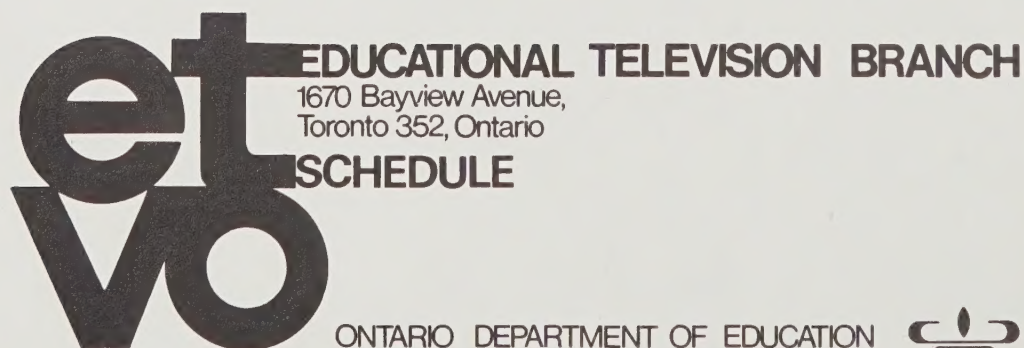

Ce cahier mensuel permet d'apporter des changements de la dernière heure et d'intégrer à la programmation certaines émissions spéciales.

Il est donc indispensable de confronter l'horaire imprimé dans le guide du maître avec cet horaire à jour.

Voici comment est conçu l'horaire mensuel de la Télévo:

1. Les émissions en français pour les francophones, sont énumérées sous le titre "FRANCAIS" à la suite des émissions en anglais.
2. On y trouve le titre de la série de même que le titre, le numéro du guide du maître, le numéro de la durée de chaque émission (e.g., Les sciences (F5): 1. Les animaux).
3. Les postes sont indiqués par les lettres d'identité et le nom de la ville (e.g. CKLW (9) Windsor). Voir page 23.

Les guides du maître, que seul peut commander le directeur de l'école, contiennent en plus d'une documentation complète pour chacune des séries, des suggestions pratiques d'utilisation en salle de classe.

Examining the Change Process

5 programs, 30 minutes each.

The lag that exists between the best we know and translating that best into actual practice is a continuing problem which concerns everyone engaged in education. In times like these, when the rate of change in the world is constantly accelerating, it becomes increasingly important to reduce this lag. Knowing more about how to bring about change in behaviour would indeed be helpful to accomplish this task.

This series of five 30 minute programs is designed to examine the many different ways by which educators at all levels are instrumental in initiating and supporting change. It will draw upon practices observed in different schools, by people working in a variety of ways and in many different capacities. There will be glimpses of conferences and workshops where teachers, consultants, administrators, and professors are discussing problems, sharing ideas, and planning strategies.

There will be opportunities to observe a total staff, a division, and an individual teacher striving to implement change in the teaching/learning process. Many people have contributed by permitting cameras to record them while they are at work. They are not trying to present models for other people's behaviour. They are prepared to permit others to examine their activities and use them as springboards for discussion:

- What resources will teachers draw on?
- In what ways will these resources help in the change process?
- What problems arise during the process to retard or even destroy it?
- In the realm of inter-personal relationships, what identifiable skills can be isolated as useful in bringing about change?

- Can such skills be learned?
- Can we honestly work together to bring about agreed upon objectives without resorting to the manipulation of people?
- How important are materials and technology in bringing about change?
- Above all, what can we learn about creating a climate in which favorable change is most likely to flourish?

This series is offered in the hope that all educators may find in it the stimulation to examine with fresh insights the educational process of which they are a part.

Professional Development

8 programs, 30 minutes each.

This series is designed to inform teachers of the current programs, investigations, and research in the field of education. Thus far, the programs have explained innovations in education that might be considered quite radical; e.g., Program 3 — Project SEED and Program 4 — School Without Walls.

The programs will be broadcast at monthly intervals from September to May, and they will be described in subsequent Monthly Schedules, according to their first air date.

Program 7

Pioneers in Learning

This program closely examines secondary school innovations which superficially do not appear revolutionary but may prove to be far-reaching.

Ungraded schools, continuous progress, student-generated curricula, independent study, contract systems, inter-disciplinary approaches, broken-fronts, individual timetables, subject promotions, and trimester systems are all part of the education spectrum in many secondary schools today. Many of the schools in Ontario are applying one or more of these concepts. This program focuses on two schools, Madawaska Valley District High School in Barry's Bay, Ontario and Thornlea Secondary School in York County, where all of these innovations are being tested.

The program first examines the location of Madawaska Valley District High School, some of the classes in session, and the opinions of staff and students concerning the changes that have occurred at this quiet, rural community. The program also shows a special feature of their school program, the annual winter carnival, which takes place in the middle of the second trimester.

Next, the program shifts to the suburban setting of Thornlea Secondary School in York County, on the outskirts of Metropolitan Toronto. As at Madawaska, students help to determine the courses that are being offered, have the freedom to choose from a wide variety of subjects according to their interests, and can choose subjects at a level suited to their own abilities. The students are responsible for the consequences of their choices. The staff and the students discuss the details of this program. There is a new freedom for learning in all areas: the Electronic Music Composing Room, the Jungle, the Science Labs, the Students' Common Room, the Computer Lab and the Staff Lounge.

It is not certain whether innovative programs such as these will provide for all of the needs of students for the Seventies. However, they certainly answer some of the basic demands for change.

Inner City Schools

The term "Inner City Schools" no longer applies strictly to schools in the downtown areas of our cities. Boards of education use different criteria for designating areas "Inner City", but some elements are common to all evaluations: poor, overcrowded, often subsidized housing; many welfare recipients; high incidence of juvenile delinquency; and low academic achievement of school-age children. Concern for the disproportionate number of inner-city children who have not succeeded in school is not new, but new methods are being tried to deal with the problems. Therefore, inner city projects strive to provide more equal educational opportunities. It is said that children who are raised and attend school in the inner city often are not destined for academic success, due to physical, economic, social and emotional factors. When a person visits and works in these areas, he is immediately impressed by the poverty, the sense of defeat and failure, the unacceptable behaviour patterns, the lack of adequate child care, the poor housing, the broken homes, and the inability to communicate.

The school cannot be merely another welfare agency looking after the physical needs of the community. What can the school do? How can it work with the community to raise the academic sights of the parents, which must be changed before the children can overcome their sense of defeat? How many barriers are unintentionally placed between the school and the community? In communities where all authority represents a threat, what about the school?

These questions must be faced by the schools. Fortunately, understanding educators are developing compensatory programs for their schools. This program shows three such projects operating in Toronto, North York, and Hamilton. An attempt is made to show that each program has its unique features and its own way of coping with the problems.

Part of the solution to the problems lies in the qualities of the teachers involved. In the program, each classroom illustrates effective teaching techniques, handled with love and understanding. More funds provide for smaller classes, more equipment and supplies, and teacher aides. Other services, such as those of social workers and other community agencies, are also explored in the program.

The methods used by each school to bridge the gaps within the community are examined in a variety of ways. These may involve direct participation of the parents in the children's reading program or may take the form of social events, encouraged by the school, to foster communications between parents and teachers.

Above all, it is evident that the programs must be introduced in the lower grades. In fact, much of the groundwork must be laid at the kindergarten level.

ATTENTION

— Students and Teachers of Theatre Arts

Series — Literature Language & The Arts — Part 11

Program 19

SNOW IN THE SUPERMARKET

IS FOR YOU

This Program features the Theatre Hour Company of The St. Lawrence Centre for the Performing Arts in a WORKSHOP.

The Program, filmed in an Ontario High School during a student workshop, is designed to have the audience of students and teachers of drama take part while viewing. As a preparation for seeing this program, students might dress in rehearsal clothes and watch the program in a large classroom, practice area or stage.

The Program opens with an exercise in reaction and imagination from which the show gets its title. Then each member of the Company takes a turn in leading the students -- AND THE TV AUDIENCE -- through a series of exercises in awareness, imagination, body conditioning, speech and movement, all of which would be part of an intensive study at the Theatre School.

After this participatory section, the program builds to an improvisation, and records the reactions of the students who have played creative roles in the conflict of an imaginary drama.

We invite your PARTICIPATION in the workshop and comments on the program.

NOTICE

Program 18 Comedy Tonight!

This program features the Theatre Hour Company of The St. Lawrence Centre performing excerpts from 20 centuries of comedy. After a brief look at Aristophanes' THE BIRDS, the show proceeds to give lively scenes from three important types of comedy: PANTALONE PUNISHED, from the Comedia del'Arte; THE PROPOSAL, by Anton Chekov; and THE BALD SOPRANO, by Eugene Ionesco. Unfortunately there was not sufficient time in the half-hour program to include the scene from Sheridan's THE RIVALS, which was advertised in the guide book materials.

Creative Talent

Professional Development

10 programs, 30 minutes each.

This ETVO series consists of student productions which have been submitted to the province-wide ETVO Student Production Competition.

Program 8

Region 10

Program 8 consists of three student productions from Region 10: "Piggies", "To Bloom Or Not To Bloom", and "Science Excursion".

"Piggies" is a very short film which attempts to show that all wars contain violence, regardless of whether or not they are fought for just causes. This message is developed in a comparison between people and pigs.

"To Bloom Or Not To Bloom" is the story of a scientist who discovers a blot on his world. He decides to take constructive action in his laboratory and goes overboard in his attempts to improve his world. The film is done in cartoon animation.

The third film, "Science Excursion", was an attempt to film a field trip made by a group of elementary school students. The students produced a good film and gained a great deal of experience and knowledge.

SERIESEVENTY

Again, in 1970-71, ETVO is sponsoring a unique experiment in educational television. "Series Seventy", like its predecessor, "Creative Talent", consists of productions entirely conceived and developed by students. The experience of creating a television production can provide students and teachers alike with a deeper understanding of television — its technical problems, its effectiveness as a means of communication and its creative potential.

Bulletins, posters and Intent to Enter forms were sent to all schools in Ontario in January, 1970 detailing the submission of entries to ETV. Films should be entirely student-produced and not exceed 25 minutes in length. 8mm, super 8, 16mm or video tape are all acceptable media for production. Those productions selected for telecast will be transferred to video tape at ETV.

The Intent to Enter Form should be submitted before March 30, 1970 and productions must be completed before April 30, 1970. Due to the great number of entries, it is unfortunately impossible to show every production on the air. Thus, student viewing committees in each region will select the finest films, first from Elementary school, and then from Secondary school entries, to be telecast throughout the province.

We recommend that teachers and principals encourage their students to take advantage of this opportunity to learn more about a medium which is increasingly becoming an essential ingredient of modern life.

ETVO's Regional Program Consultants (listed in Bulletin no. 6 and in the November Schedule) are your regional contacts for "Series Seventy". Feel free to contact them about any problems you might encounter. Any further problems or inquiries can be forwarded to:
